

Virtual launch

External police oversight, accountability and xenophobic violence in South Africa:

Is there oversight and monitoring?

Date: TUESDAY 15 MARCH 2022

Time: 09:30-12:00

Register in advance for this meeting:

After registering, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the meeting.

The persistence of xenophobic violence and hate crime in South Africa raises critical questions regarding the ability of external oversight institutions – the South African Human Rights Commission (SAHRC), the Independent Police Investigative Directorate (IPID) and the Civilian Secretariat of Police Service (CSPS) – to keep the mandate holders to account.

Recent research by the African Policing Civilian Oversight Forum (APCOF) with the support of the European Union (EU) reviews the role of police oversight bodies, their recommendations, and the progress made on these recommendations, before exploring how we can be more responsive. This seminar provides a forum to key stakeholders to unpack these issues and examine how police performance and accountability can be strengthened through the mandates of the key constitutional and statutory oversight bodies.

Your participation in this event is important to us.

Please register this event using the registration link provided. For any further information regarding the launch please contact Helene van der Watt:

helene@apcof.org.za or Themba Masuku:
themba@apcof.org.za

This event is made possible through the support of the European Union.

